

Everybody wants to be wanted (Alen's Song)

We have a right to know the truth
To verify our mere existence here
To understand our mothers
To comprehend why they abandoned us

Everybody wants to be wanted
Everybody goes to be gone
And our fathers plead not guilty
To try to make their sins undone

We long to find the answers
The other halves of what we are
We learned to live and forgive
To compensate for blood relationships
To grow up and not ask
To grow out of our past
As symbols of humanity betrayed

Everybody wants to be wanted
Everybody goes to be gone
And our fathers plead not guilty
To try to make their sons undone
